

Good Morning Advisors,

I hope you are all doing well and have had as nice of a summer break as possible. We have been working on ideas to engage students knowing that most of them will be learning in a virtual environment for the beginning of the school year. Oregon HOSA has partnered with Arizona, Nevada, and New Mexico HOSA to host a workshop series starting this week. These workshops will be presented each week and will be hosted by the state officer teams from each state. They are FREE to all HOSA members. Our goal is to spark your students interests in joining HOSA. The workshops will last about an hour each week and will be scheduled in the afternoon so students are out of school and able to attend. If you have students that are unable to join us during the time below that is ok! We will be recording these workshops and posting them on our website.

Your Oregon HOSA State Officer Team volunteered to host the first week! Below is the information about this weeks workshop. I apologize for the delay in getting the information to you. The first speaker we had scheduled had to back out and our Oregon HOSA state officer team worked extremely hard this weekend to secure another speaker. Below is the information about the speaker along with the meeting location. I have also attached a handout that you can share with your students.

Speaker: Dr. Sudarshan Anand

Topic: Dr. Anand will be talking about tumor micro environments in colorectal cancer patients. He is also an expert in immunology and will also talk about some careers in immunology.
