PRESENTED BY Lance Brown
TEAMTRI

Lance Brown is a relationship and sales expert and trainer. As a fundraiser (FUNraiser) and highly rated business professor at Utah Tech University, he has played an integral part in the university's explosive growth including the development of a new football stadium, a state-of-the-art human performance center, and transition to Division 1 status.

Lance's experience, energy, and message connects well with students! He combines lessons learned from a career in sales to helping students learn how to make better connections with their classmates, teachers, and future coworkers and supervisors. Before working as a speaker, professor, and fundraiser, he worked as a national sales director at Nest Inc, where his list of extensive accomplishments including top salesman, top recruiter, and top sales manager. While at Nest, Lance recruited, trained, and managed nearly 700 young sales professionals and was responsible for over $20M in sales. Lance also authored and published a children's book, "The Answered Prayer," that featured on KSL, BYUTV, Deseret News, and the Salt Lake Tribune.

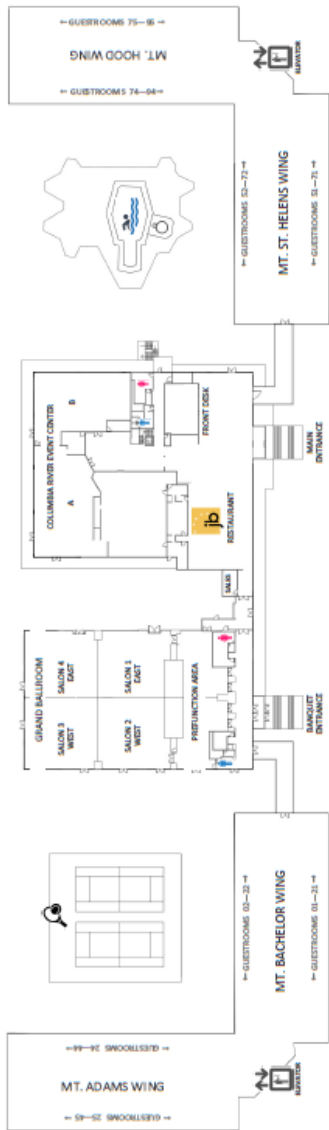

Lance has a bachelor's degree in marketing and a master's degree in executive leadership. Through his experience, he has gained valuable insights into what draws individuals to each other and moves people to action. He loves to share these empowering lessons with others – especially students – so that they can learn the key skills and influence earlier on and develop key leadership and connection skills to help them succeed in any career path. Lance is married and has five kids; they are all boys except for 4 of them. Lake Powell, UT is his favorite place in the world to visit. He is a basketball fanatic and terrible golfer. As the former drummer/lead singer of his college rock band, he often wonders if he missed his life calling.
